Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

A few years ago, while I was on holiday in Sinai near Saint Catherine, I stopped for the night in a small desert village. It was a poor place, and there was no real hotel, but the owner of a local restaurant, Mr. Hassan, kindly offered me a bed for the night. "Please wait here," he said, pointing to a wooden table outside. "I'll prepare your room."

The evening was beautiful. The sun was setting behind the rugged mountains, and the stars were just beginning to appear. Families were lighting small fires to cook their evening meals, and the pleasant smell of wood smoke filled the cool desert air.

Then I realized I was no longer alone. An old man with a long white beard had quietly sat at the table beside me. His clothes were dusty and almost in rags.

"How can I help you?" I asked.

"Let me tell your fortune, sir," he said.

I laughed. "I don't believe in that kind of thing." But he gently held my hand and refused to let go. "Very well," I said. "First, tell me about my past. If you can do that, I'll let you talk about the future."

He read my palm lines in silence and then began to describe my childhood in Alexandria, my family, and even places where I had lived and worked in other cities.

Every word was true!

"Stop!" I cried. "How do you know all this?"

D.M.RAZK موقع الدكتور محمد رزق معلم الكيمياء التعليمي

"I know about the past, the present, and even the future," he whispered. "Do you want to hear it?"

I hesitated. Just then, Mr. Hassan returned. "Your room is ready, sir. Were you talking to someone?"

I looked around, but the old man had vanished. The owner smiled, "Oh, that must be Mahmoud, the village mysterious man. He always thinks he can tell fortunes!"

12. What is the central idea of the story?
   a. The narrator's holiday in Saint Catherine was boring.
   b. The narrator's holiday took an unexpected turn.
   c. The restaurant owner prepared a delicious meal.
   d. A horrible holiday the narrator would always remember.
13. Where did the narrator first meet the old man?

14. What did the restaurant owner call the old man?
   a. A fortune-teller
   b. The village mysterious man
   c. A holy man
   d. A tourist guide
15. Which of the following can summarize the middle part of the story (the meeting with the old man)?
   a. The narrator met an old man who accurately told him about his past and claimed to know the future.
   b. The narrator stayed in a hotel where a kind owner prepared his room and made his dinner.
   c. The narrator spent the evening watching the sunset and smelling the wood smoke.
   d. The narrator believed in fortune-telling and asked the old man to predict his future.
16. The event that changes the narrator's opinion about the old man is when .....
   a. he offered to tell the future
   b. the restaurant owner returned
   c. he revealed the narrator's past
   d. the old man disappeared
17. When the old man described the narrator's childhood, he was .....
   a. angry and disappointed
   b. excited but shocked
   c. entertained but terrified
   d. doubtful and nervous
18. Throughout the story the narrator's feelings towards the old man changed from .....
   a. fear to anger
   b. disbelief to surprise
   c. respect to hatred
   d. sadness to happiness
19. What is the most likely reason the old man disappeared before Mr. Hassan returned?
   a. He didn't want Mr. Hassan to see him.
   b. He was a traveler who left to find food.
   c. He was only in the narrator's imagination.
   d. He went to get the narrator's room ready.

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

In recent decades, the world has faced serious environmental challenges such as climate change, air pollution, and the depletion of natural resources. As a result, many countries have turned to renewable energy sources as a sustainable solution for the future. Renewable energy comes from natural sources that are continuously renewed, such as sunlight, wind, water, and geothermal heat. Unlike fossil fuels, these sources do not produce harmful greenhouse gases when used to generate electricity.

One of the most popular forms of renewable energy is solar power. Solar panels capture sunlight and convert it into electricity through a process known as the photovoltaic effect. The cost of solar technology has dropped significantly over the past decade, making it more accessible to homes and businesses. Another important source is wind energy, produced when turbines convert the movement of air into mechanical power. Wind farms, both on land and at sea, now supply a large portion of electricity in many European countries.

Hydropower, which uses flowing water to generate electricity, remains one of the oldest and most reliable energy sources. In addition, geothermal energy, which harnesses heat from beneath the Earth's surface, provides a steady source of power in countries such as Iceland and New Zealand.

However, renewable energy also faces challenges. Solar and wind power depend on weather conditions, while building large dams for hydropower can affect local ecosystems. To overcome these issues, scientists are working on advanced energy storage systems and more efficient technologies.

Despite these challenges, renewable energy offers a path to a cleaner, healthier planet. By investing in sustainable solutions today, we can protect our environment and ensure that future generations enjoy a safe and prosperous world.

20. The main idea of the text is that renewable energy ..... .
   a. is too costly to be practical b. can replace fossil fuels in a sustainable way
   c. harms the environment d. is only used in Europe
21. Based on the ideas in paragraph 1, what does the writer indirectly encourage readers to do about resource depletion?
   a. Ignore it because it is a natural process. b. Assume that it will solve itself over time.
   c. Recognize how serious it is and take action to stop it.
   d. Think it only affects scientists and not ordinary people.
22. Which form of energy produced from sunlight?
   a. Hydropower b. Wind energy c. Solar power d. Geothermal energy 23. According to the text, what is one problem with renewable energy?
   a. It depends on weather conditions b. It causes air pollution
   c. It cannot produce electricity d. It is more harmful than fossil fuels 24. The tone of the passage is mostly ..... .
   a. critical b. humorous c. emotional d. informative
25. Based on the passage, what can we infer about the future of renewable energy?
   a. It will be replaced by fossil fuels b. It will likely continue to grow
   c. It will disappear soon d. It is not supported by governments
26. According to the passage, which country is mentioned as using geothermal energy?
   a. France b. Iceland c. Egypt d. Japan
27. Which statement summarizes paragraph 2 of the passage?
   a. It explains how solar and wind energy convert natural resources into electricity and are becoming more common.
   b. It argues that solar energy remains too costly for most people to install or maintain.
   c. It describes how hydropower is the oldest and most reliable energy source still used I many countries today.
   d. It focuses on the environmental problems caused by burning fossil fuel for electricity.

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Every year, thousands of accidents occur simply because drivers lose focus for a few seconds. One morning last year a man was driving through the center of the town, distracted by the shops. Suddenly a pedestrian stepped off the pavement and was struck by the car. The impact threw the person onto the bonnet before falling onto the road, where a faint trace of blood marked the dust- a heart breaking and distressing reminder of the accident.

A few minutes later, the police arrived and made a report. 'One person killed, one car damaged in road accident.' However, who was the victim? A mother out shopping, a father returning from work, or a student on her way to university? This was one of many tragedies that could have been avoided if people had followed three simple rules: first, concentrate; second, think ahead and third, use clear signals to communicate their intentions to others.

D.M.RAZK موقع الدكتور محمد رزق معلم الكيمياء التعليمي

A driver loses control whenever attention drifts — whether to the scenery, to conversation, or to thoughts unrelated to driving. To avoid accidents, drivers should anticipate potential dangers — not only reacting to what is happening but also predicting what might occur next.

Finally, drivers must clearly warn other road users of their presence and intentions. If they turn, change lanes, or overtake without signaling or giving proper warning, they may at best alarm others or at worst, cause a fatal accident. Responsible driving depends on three essential habits: concentration, foresight, and communication. Following these simple principles can prevent countless tragedies.

12. The suitable title of this passage is " ..... "
    a. Unavoidable Road Accidents
    b. A life lost, a lesson learned
    c. Tolerable Road Casualties
    d. No Pain, No Gain

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

'Macbeth, Act 1, Scene 1 – An Open Place. "Thunder and Lightning." I knew that the first scene of 'Macbeth' happened during a thunderstorm so I was not surprised when bright lights and loud noises filled the theatre. The next scene was quieter. Old king Duncan came on and he heard from a soldier how bravely Macbeth had been fighting against enemies of the king. Duncan did not know yet that Macbeth was going to kill him and I was not going to tell him because then they would have to change the play.

While I was thinking about this, I noticed a man in strange clothes standing in the aisle next to me. I assumed he had come late and was waiting to get to his seat. 'Excuse me,' I whispered. "Do you want to get past? Is your seat in this row?" The strangely dressed man did not answer. I stood up and said 'Excuse me! A little louder. 'Sit down!' said the person sitting behind me. "God save the king." The man in the aisle shouted suddenly and ran towards the stage. That was embarrassing, as I suddenly understood why he had not said anything. He was in the play! Oh, dear I wanted to hide under my seat.

At the end of the third act there were lots of battles and fights, then there was an interval. 'Very good'. said Dad. 'Very interesting.' 'Isn't it exciting?' said Mum. Dina was too busy with an ice-cream. After the interval people came into the play from every part of the theatre. In one battle scene soldiers were running all over the place fighting all the time. It was fantastic. 'Wasn't it great?' said Dina in the taxi on the way home. Hani, why don't you become an actor? You'd be good. We all laughed. No, Dina I wouldn't like acting,' I answered.

20. The main idea of this passage is that .....

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Heritage preservation is a critical aspect of preserving cultural and historical landmarks for future generations. The relationship between existing heritage and newly-built constructions is a complex one, as seen in the case of the Fortress Medicea in Siena, Italy. Built in 1561, the fortress symbolizes a historical defeat and holds significant meaning for local residents. Modern approaches to heritage preservation involve balancing the old with the new, ensuring that the identity of such landmarks is maintained while adapting them for contemporary use.

In Canada, the protection of heritage sites on Indian reserve lands has been a controversial issue. The summer of 1990 witnessed significant activism from Indian communities, particularly the Peigan, who protested against the construction of a dam that would flood sacred archaeological sites. The absence of federal legislation for heritage protection on Indian lands has created a legal vacuum, making it challenging to safeguard these sites under existing laws like the Indian Act.

In China, the conservation of urban cultural heritage is influenced by post- modernism, which emphasizes the cultural, historical, and social values of historical legacies. The challenge lies in finding methods that preserve these values while avoiding the dangers of commercial exploitation and negativism.

In Egypt, the preservation of ancient heritage reached a remarkable level during the construction of the Aswan High Dam in 1954.This meant that the Nile Valley would be flooded and that Abu Simbel would be submerged under water, so plans were made to rescue it. The massive statues were cut into pieces and raised over 60 metres up the cliff, where they were attached to a concrete base. Today, the temples, which were re-opened in 1968, are an amazing combination of ancient and modern engineering.

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

The sun was beginning to dip below the horizon, casting long, dancing shadows across the bustling city street. Amid the throngs of people hurrying home from work, a young woman named Anya paused to tie her loose shoelace.

As she knelt on the sidewalk, she noticed an elderly man nearby struggling to carry a heavy bag of groceries. His steps were slow and unsteady. He paused every few feet to catch his breath. Without hesitation, Anya stood up and offered to help. The man—surprised by her kindness—smiled gratefully and accepted.

As they walked together toward his apartment building, they struck up a warm conversation. Anya learned his name was Mr. Patel and that he lived alone since his wife had passed away two years earlier. He spoke fondly of his daughter, who lived across the country, and shared stories of his youth, his career as a teacher, and his enduring love for gardening. Anya listened with genuine interest, moved by his gentle spirit and quiet resilience.

When they arrived at his building, Anya insisted on carrying the groceries all the way to his door and even helped him unpack. As she watched him carefully place tomatoes and bread on the counter, she felt a deep sense of fulfillment—not only had she eased his burden, but she'd also made a meaningful human connection.

Walking home under the soft glow of streetlights, Anya felt a quiet joy settle over her. She realized that even the smallest act of kindness could ripple outward in ways she might never see. From that day forward, she made a conscious effort to be more present, observant, and willing to help others—because sometimes, all it takes is one moment of compassion to change someone's day... or even their life.

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

Success stories often begin with struggle, and Karim's journey is no exception. Born into a poor neighborhood, Karim faced many challenges from a young age. His parents worked multiple jobs just to make ends meet, and there were times when they couldn't even afford basic school supplies. Despite these hardships, He never gave up on his dream of becoming an engineer.

During high school, Karim spent countless hours studying, often using old books and online resources because he couldn't afford tutoring. His grades were excellent, but getting into university was still a huge obstacle due to financial difficulties. Determined not to let poverty define his future, he applied for dozens of scholarships. After many rejections, he finally received a full scholarship. Even at university, life wasn't easy. Karim worked part-time jobs to support his living expenses and continued to face academic and personal challenges. But he stayed focused, motivated by the belief that his hard work would eventually pay off.

Years later, Karim graduated with honors and was offered a job at a top engineering firm.

Today, he is a well-known engineer and mentors students who come from similar backgrounds.

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

Health care is one of the main pillars of a developed society. It goes beyond treating diseases; it focuses on promoting wellness, preventing illness, and improving the quality of life for all individuals. A strong health care system reflects a nation's values, priorities, and sense of responsibility toward its people.

Today, health care, supported by modern technology, has become more complex and more essential than ever. With the rapid spread of new diseases and global health challenges, such as pandemics and pollution, nations must invest heavily in medical research, public hospitals, and health education. Good health care is not a luxury; it is a human right that should be available to everyone, regardless of income or social class.

D.M.RAZK موقع الدكتور محمد رزق معلم الكيمياء التعليمي

To further develop and enhance health care, developed societies are now turning to technology driven solutions. Artificial intelligence, telemedicine, and advanced medical equipment have transformed the way doctors diagnose and treat patients. For example, online medical consultations allow people in remote areas to receive expert advice without traveling long distances.

However, despite all the progress, many people around the world still suffer from poor medical services. Lack of funding and low awareness remain serious problems. Therefore, both governments and individuals must work together. In conclusion, the health of a nation determines its strength and future. Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

It was a quiet Saturday afternoon when Laila decided to stay home and study for her final exams. The streets outside were empty, and the only sound was the soft ticking of the old wall clock. As she turned another page of her science book, she suddenly heard a scratching sound near the window. Thinking it was just the wind, she ignored it and continued reading. But the sound grew louder. Curious and a little nervous, Laila walked to the window and gently pulled the curtain aside.

To her surprise, a small injured bird was sitting on the windowsill, its wing trembling. Without hesitation, Laila opened the window and carefully picked up the tiny creature. She placed it in a small box lined with an old towel and brought it some water. The bird drank a little and then closed its eyes. Laila smiled, feeling both proud and responsible.

The next morning, she woke up early to check on her new friend. The bird looked stronger and even tried to flap its wings. Laila opened the window again, and this time the bird hopped to the edge and flew away into the bright morning sky. She watched it disappear among the trees, feeling a strange warmth in her heart.

That day, Laila realized that small acts of kindness could bring great joy. The little bird had come into her life unexpectedly, but it left her with a lesson she would never forget — compassion can turn ordinary moments into something truly meaningful.

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

In today's world, automated machines play a major role in our daily lives. These machines are designed to perform tasks with little or no human control. They use sensors, computer programs, and artificial intelligence to complete jobs quickly and accurately. Automated machines can be found in many fields, from manufacturing and agriculture to healthcare and transportation.

In factories, robots work alongside people to assemble cars, pack products, or inspect items for defects. These machines can work continuously without getting tired, which increases production and reduces errors. In agriculture, automated machines help farmers plant seeds, water crops, and harvest food more efficiently. This technology saves time and labor while improving the quality of products.

Automated systems are also becoming more common in our everyday lives. For example, self-checkout machines in supermarkets allow customers to scan and pay for items without a cashier. Smart home devices can control lighting, temperature, and security automatically. In transportation, self-driving cars are being tested to make travel safer and easier.

However, automation also raises important questions. Some people worry that machines will replace human workers, leading to fewer job opportunities. Others believe that automation will create new kinds of jobs and improve living standards. As technology continues to advance, it is important for societies to find a balance between human skills and machine efficiency.

Automated machines are transforming the way we live and work. They offer speed, accuracy, and convenience, but they also challenge us to adapt to a rapidly changing world.

20. The main idea of the passage is that automated machines ..... .

    d. telling details about the history of machines
23. According to the author's attitude toward automation, we can infer that he .....
    a. believes automation is completely negative
    b. supports automation but sees its challenges
    c. dislikes technological progress d. wants all jobs to be replaced by machines
24. If automation continues to grow in the future , ...
    a. machines will stop working in factories
    b. people will avoid using technology in their lives
    c. societies will need to adapt to new types of jobs
    d. all machines will be removed from daily life
25. Which statement shows two conflicting arguments in the passage?
    a. Machines are fast and people are slow.
    b. Some fear job loss while others believe automation creates new jobs.
    c. Farmers use automation but doctors don't.
    d. Automation only helps factories and people fear using them.
26. Through reading the passage we can say that .....
    a. Automation improves efficiency but requires careful management
    b. Automation destroys the environment
    c. Automated systems are not used in modern life
    d. People should stop using machines and do most work manually
27. People's feelings and intentions toward automation changed throughout the text as they.....

42. "Actions speak louder than words"

Actions speak louder than words because what we do reflects our true character. Many people promise help, but few actually offer it when needed. For example, helping a friend in a difficult situation proves loyalty more than kind words. Actions build trust and show honesty in real life situations. On the other hand, empty words can easily be forgotten or ignored. Therefore, people should focus on doing good deeds rather than just talking about them.

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Sleep is one of the body's most essential functions, yet it remains one of the least understood. For centuries, scientists believed that sleep was simply a passive state of rest. However, recent research has revealed that while the body may appear still, the brain is surprisingly active. During sleep, it processes memories, regulates hormones, and repairs tissues- all critical functions for mental and physical health.

The human sleep cycle is divided into several stages, including light sleep, deep sleep, and REM (Rapid Eye Movement) sleep. Each stage plays a unique role: deep sleep helps the body recover physically, while REM sleep supports learning and emotional balance. People who lack enough REM sleep often struggle with focus, mood swings, and poor memory.

During our lifetime, we probably spend 25 years or more sleeping. But why? What is the purpose of sleep? Some scientists think we sleep in order to replenish brain cells.

Other scientists think that sleep helps the body to grow and to relieve stress.

Technology, stress, and modern lifestyles have significantly disrupted natural sleep patterns. Blue light from screens delays the release of melatonin — the hormone responsible for making us sleepy. Scientists recommend turning off electronic devices at least one hour before bed and maintaining a consistent bedtime routine.

Sleep is not a luxury; it's a biological necessity. Understanding its complexity allows us to appreciate that a good night's sleep is as vital as proper nutrition or exercise.

Read the following passage, then answer the questions from a, b, c or d:

It was a cold January morning when Maya stood at the edge of the old bridge, staring at the river below. She had returned to her hometown after ten long years. She was doing her post graduate studies in London. Everything looked smaller now—the trees, the houses, even the bridge where she and her best friend, Hana, used to spend hours talking about their dreams. But Hana was gone. The accident had taken her life a week after Maya left for college.

Maya had never forgiven herself for not being there. She had thrown herself into work, pretending that success could fill the empty space inside her. Yet, every achievement reminded her of the promise she'd broken—to come back and visit Hana before winter.

As she walked across the bridge, she felt the wind brush against her face, carrying the faint scent of pine trees. For the first time in years, she didn't rush. She stopped in the middle, closed her eyes, and whispered, "I'm sorry." Suddenly, a soft drizzle began to fall. Maya smiled through her tears. It was as if the town itself was forgiving her, washing away the guilt she had carried for so long. She realized she couldn't change the past, but she

Read the following passage and then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Deep within the heart of the Amazon rainforest, a team of biologists made a remarkable discovery. They found that trees communicate through underground networks of fungi called mycorrhizae. These fungi act as natural messengers, transferring nutrients and chemical signals between plants. When a tree is under attack by insects or disease, it releases distress signals through its roots. Nearby trees, sensing the warning, begin producing protective chemicals even before the danger reaches them. This incredible process, known as the 'Wood Wide Web,' reveals that forests are not silent—they are full of quiet conversations beneath the soil.

Scientists discovered that stronger trees sometimes share nutrients with younger or shaded trees, ensuring their survival and maintaining balance. This natural cooperation challenges the traditional belief that plants compete for resources; instead, they form a vast, interdependent community. Through advanced sensors and data modeling, researchers confirmed that these exchanges happen continuously, especially in times of stress. The discovery has inspired innovations in environmental science and biotechnology, as engineers explore ways to mimic this system in sustainable farming and data networks.

D.M.RAZK موقع الدكتور محمد رزق معلم الكيمياء التعليمي

It also deepens our understanding of how ecosystems sustain themselves and how fragile they become when disrupted. Every tree, leaf, and drop of rain contributes to a living orchestra that keeps the planet alive. The forest, therefore, is not merely a group of trees—it is a dynamic network of life built on cooperation, balance, and resilience. By protecting forests, humanity protects its own source of air, water, and inspiration, ensuring that this hidden symphony continues to play for generations to come.

12. The suitable title of this passage is " ..... ".
    a. The secret communication network of trees
    b. Trees competition in forests c. The role of fungi in ecosystems
    d. How scientists study forests
13. What detail best helps the reader understand how trees communicate?
    a. Trees grow faster to compete for sunlight.
    b. Trees send chemical alerts through their roots.
    c. Trees release signals when they feel the cold weather
    d. Trees release signals when their leaves fall.
14. The sentence that summarizes the last paragraph is " ..... ".
    a. Forests are complex ecosystems where trees share signals and resources
    b. Scientists study trees because they are beautiful
    c. The Amazon forest is larger than any other rainforest
    d. Mycorrhizae are dangerous to plant health

    a. compete for power and domination
    b. act as a community focused on balance and care
    c. ignore the weaker members of their kind d. survive by avoiding cooperation
19. If people continue destroying forests, ...
    a. the balance of natural life will be severely damaged
    b. new fungi will appear and restore the ecosystem
    c. forests will regrow faster and stronger
    d. humans will no longer depend on trees for air survival

Read the following passage and then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Ethan had always taken pride in his creative work at a design company. But when a major project unexpectedly failed, he lost his job and confidence. The sudden change left him anxious and uncertain about his future. Each day felt heavier than the one before, and he often questioned whether his life still had meaning. His world, once full of color and purpose, now seemed gray and empty.

One morning, during a quiet walk by the river, Ethan noticed the old iron bridge from his childhood. Once bright and strong, it now stood dull, cracked, and forgotten. Its broken boards seemed to reflect his own sense of loss and disappointment. This simple observation sparked an idea: if the bridge could be repaired, maybe his spirit could be restored as well.

He began cleaning it, removing graffiti, brushing off rust, and replacing worn planks. The work was slow but deeply healing. As the days passed, people from the neighborhood stopped to watch, then started helping. Together they painted the bridge in cheerful colors and added kind messages about hope and renewal.

The transformation became a story of cause and effect—Ethan's loss had created a new beginning. The bridge no longer connected only two sides of the river; it connected people. When the work was finally complete, Ethan looked across the bright rails and smiled. He realized that rebuilding the bridge had rebuilt him too. His journey from despair to gratitude showed that broken things, like broken hearts, can always be repaired through patience, teamwork, and faith in new beginnings.

20. The main idea of the passage is " ..... ".
   - a. A neglected bridge is repaired by the community after years of decay
   - b. A worker loses hope after his company closes and gives up entirely
   - c. A designer starts a new career in another country to forget the past
   - d. A man's personal loss inspires him to rebuild both a bridge and his life

21. Ethan was inspired to repair the bridge because of his .....
   - a. desire to earn money and impress his old employer
   - b. memories of crossing the bridge as a child long ago
   - c. plan to design a modern bridge for the town mayor
   - d. wish to destroy the old bridge and build a new one

22. The sentence that summarizes the second paragraph is that Ethan .....
   - a. saw the broken bridge as a reflection of his own life and began restoring it
   - b. hesitated at the bridge, unsure if he could restore it
   - c. wondered if repairing the bridge could improve his mood
   - d. noticed the bridge's cracks and worn boards but considered leaving it as it was

23. The main event in the passage is developed through .....
   - a. official reports and documents about city planning
   - b. quick actions and unrelated events about other people
   - c. clear stages showing teamwork, hope, and personal growth
   - d. short notes without reasons, results, or connections

24. The reader can infer that Ethan will .....
   - a. continue supporting projects that bring people together in his town
   - b. forget about the bridge once he finds another well-paid job
   - c. leave the neighborhood to start a company in a distant city
   - d. stop working on community projects because of his past failure

25. The tone of the passage is .....

Read the following passage and choose the correct answer:

My early visits to Facebook were limited and careful. It felt like a guilty pleasure, a small escape from reality. But within two years, I became completely absorbed—uploading dozens of photo albums every week, writing endless silly status updates, and collecting hundreds of meaningless online "friends." People shared everything imaginable, giving up their privacy and exposing their friends' lives as well. I felt a kind of separation anxiety whenever I was offline for more than a few hours.

The real wake-up call happened when I totally forgot a long-planned reunion with a friend because I was busy with pointless Facebook chatting. "This is ridiculous," I told myself. Social networking was meant to improve my social life, not destroy it. I should have realized earlier that I had lived perfectly well before Facebook, so I decided to return to a simpler routine. I could still contact the people I cared about. I had a phone, and I could send emails or even write letters. So, I made the decision to deactivate. It took only a few attempts and was surprisingly easy.

Facebook asked why I had left, but my decision was firm. I wanted to know whether I could manage without it for at least a week. The platform told me I could come back anytime and reactivate, but I felt free. Naturally, not everyone was concerned about my disappearance- many didn't even notice. One friend only realized something had changed when his friend count dropped by one, yet he never bothered to find out who had gone.

Choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

12. What is the main idea of the passage?
    - a. Excessive use of Facebook led the writer to neglect real friendships and return to simpler ways of socializing.
    - b. The writer understood that spending too much time online made them ignore school or work responsibilities.
    - c. Excessive use of Facebook caused the writer to lose interest in hobbies and avoid meeting family members.
    - d. Spending too much time on Facebook resulted in the writer focusing on online games and forgetting daily routines.
13. The writer's turning point occurred when they .....
    - a. lost access to her Facebook account

    - a. disliked using technology
    - b. stayed offline for long periods
    - c. relied too heavily on Facebook
    - d. had few online friends
18. What contrast does the writer make about social networking?
    - a. It is meant to improve social life but can actually spoil it.
    - b. It should entertain people but instead teaches them new skills.
    - c. It always increases confidence.
    - d. It creates privacy but reduces communication.
19. What does the writer's choice to deactivate reveal about their intentions?
    - a. They aimed to test their ability to live without Facebook.
    - b. They wanted to take a break from online interaction for a while.
    - c. They planned to create a second account later.
    - d. They aimed to break all communication permanently

Read the following passage and choose the correct answer:

When you picture a desert, you probably imagine a very hot area covered with sand. While this image suits many deserts, Earth's biggest desert is actually extremely cold and covered in ice: Antarctica.

For any region to be classified as a desert, it must receive very little precipitation. More precisely, it must get an annual average of less than ten inches of moisture—whether rain, sleet, hail, or snow. Antarctica, the coldest place on the planet, has temperatures that usually stay below freezing. Because cold air holds far less moisture than warm air, the atmosphere over Antarctica contains almost no water vapor. This is reflected in the very small amounts of precipitation the continent receives. For instance, the central part of Antarctica gets fewer than two inches of snow a year, while the coastline receives between seven and eight inches. Since the total amount is so low, Antarctica is considered a desert.

In hot deserts, rainfall evaporates quickly. In Antarctica, however, the air is too cold to hold water vapor, so very little evaporation occurs. Because almost none of the fallen snow evaporates, it remains on the ground and eventually builds into massive ice sheets. Any loose snow that does not freeze into ice is swept up by the strong, constant winds across the continent. These snow-filled winds can make it appear as if it is snowing. Although real snowfall is rare, blizzards are surprisingly common in Antarctica.

Choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

20. What is the main idea of the passage?
   - a. Antarctica is considered a desert mainly because it receives the most snowfall each year compared to other regions.
   - b. Although Antarctica is extremely cold, it is Earth's largest desert because it gets very little precipitation.
   - c. Most people think all deserts are always hot and sandy.
   - d. Antarctica experiences the strongest winds in the world.

21. How much snow does the central part of Antarctica annually receive?
   - a. More than ten inches of snow.
   - b. Between seven and eight inches of snow.
   - c. Less than two inches of snow.
   - d. No precipitation at all.

22. Which of the following sentences summarizes the second paragraph?
   - a. Antarctica meets the definition of a desert as it receives very little precipitation.
   - b. Antarctica has cold temperature with heavy snow, and a lot of precipitation.
   - c. Antarctica is always wet and humid as it gets rain, snow, sleet and hail.
   - d. Antarctica is cold and air holds water vapor, so a high rate of evaporation occurs.

23. The writer explains why Antarctica is a desert by..... .
   - a. describing its high humidity and having a lot of snow in all seasons
   - b. explaining the low precipitation and cold air that holds little moisture
   - c. comparing it with tropical rainforests
   - d. showing how much snow melts

24. We can infer that most snow in Antarctica remains on the ground because ..... .
   - a. strong sunlight melts it
   - b. the air is too cold for evaporation
   - c. the continent receives heavy rainfall
   - d. winds blow loose snow across the ground

25. Although snowfall is rare in Antarctica, blizzards are common because .....
   - a. the winds carry loose snow across the surface
   - b. warm air builds clouds quickly
   - c. there is frequent rain in some regions
   - d. storms occur often during summer months

a. It is warm enough for rapid evaporation.
b. It has the same climate as sandy deserts.
c. It receives heavy snowfall yearly, covering most parts of the continent.
d. It is too cold to hold moisture, which limits precipitation.

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Many people in different parts of the world have reported seeing strange objects moving in the sky. From their descriptions, it seems that most of the objects had bright, multi-colored lights but with different shapes. Some produced a humming noise; others were completely silent. They moved very quickly, very slowly, hovered in the sky or sank into the sea. All were objects people had never seen before and, therefore, could not identify. That's why they are called unidentified flying objects or UFOs.

A local fisherman of one country has an interesting story to tell. He said he was fishing about four kilometers off the coast when a large saucer-shaped object suddenly appeared. The bottom two- thirds of the object was reddish in color, the top one- third was silver. He watched it for two or three minutes as it hovered over the sea at a height of about 200 meters. Suddenly, ten or twelve small bright objects shot out of the 'mother ship'. They circled three or four times then they dropped down and disappeared into the sea. The UFO, then rose in the sky and vanished.

D.M.RAZK موقع الدكتور محمد رزق معلم الكيمياء التعليمي

Scientists say that they can explain 90 percent of the UFOs that have been reported. They say people have really seen clouds of gas, electricity reflected from clouds, swarms of insects and balloons, aircraft and other man-made objects. But, what about the other 10 percent that scientists cannot explain?

Is it possible that there is intelligent life on other planets? Is it possible that creatures from other planets are more advanced than us? Is it possible that UFOs are their spaceships and that they are studying us? We do not know the answers to these questions. Until we do, these objects will remain unidentified.

12. The main idea of the passage is .....
   - a. people have seen objects from other planets which they know much about
   - b. scientists are concerned about discovering objects from other planets
   - c. some people have seen flying objects and they are still a mystery
   - d. a fisherman has made a big discovery when seeing a UFO by accident

14. The sentence that summarizes the third paragraph is that scientists .....
   - a. were not able to discover or explain the fact of UFOs but they have control over them
   - b. can explain only a little about the UFOs that they describe as mere clouds of gas and reflections of electricity
   - c. were able to analyze most of the story of people watching UFOs and say they are clouds of gas, electricity reflections and other man-made objects
   - d. are not sure of the reality of UFOs which people describe as clouds of gas and reflections of electricity

15. The image of a UFO finally led us to .....
   - a. conclude that there are other advanced creatures watching us
   - b. question if whether there are more developed living things in the outer space
   - c. wonder if humans can live a more advanced life on other planets one day
   - d. reject the existence of a more developed species on other planets

16. Unless people had reported seeing UFOs, we .....
   - a. would have assumed they existed in our planet
   - b. wouldn't have travelled through space
   - c. would have requested saucer-shaped spaceships like them
   - d. wouldn't have asked for scientists' interpretation about them

17. The text inspires us that we can ..... in the future.
   - a. have multi-shaped spaceships b. support scientists discover more UFOs
   - c. use UFOs for space exploration d. continue monitoring the horizon for long

18. Unlike real spaceships, UFOs ..... as being described in the text.
   - a. can bear other smaller identical objects
   - b. have multi colored lights and humming noise
   - c. can move quickly, slowly and hover in circles
   - d. are multi-shaped man-made vehicles

19. This text can be classified as a ..... piece of writing.
   - a. factual b. persuasive c. narrative d. fictional

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Doctor! It's my brother. I think he's very ill. Can you come quickly? My name is Fareed Magdi, Tahrir street number 47, just ahead of Tyba Hotel. This urgent dawn call was the most difficult and toughest situation I've ever had. The ten minutes I spent waiting for the doctor seemed like years. By now, I was very worried. I tried to think of how to reach my parents. But it was no good. I didn't know which hotel they were staying in.

Then the doctor arrived and that helped. He wasn't long in Hady's room and he looked very worried when he came out. He asked if Hady suffered any symptoms like vomiting, fever or any other signs. I explained that he just complained some stomach pain quite a lot recently. The doctor said Hady is very ill and he would have to go to hospital immediately. I nearly died. The doctor explained that he had appendicitis; his appendix is badly swollen and could burst at any moment and that Hady would have to have an instant operation.

Then the doctor rang the hospital. They were quick; the ambulance was outside the house in less than a quarter of an hour and they carried Hady to hospital. I never imagined how fast everyone would jump to action and how much a medical staff would cooperate to save a life. It was just then that I felt comforted that my brother was in safe hands who are greatly dedicated to their work. Hady came out safe from the operation and he was much obliged to what we really recognized as ''The World of Care''.

20. The main idea of the passage is that .....
   - a. Hady had an operation after he suffered some pain in his stomach
   - b. doctors are helpful at hospitals when emergencies arise
   - c. Fareed found himself alone and helpless with his ill brother but a doctor came for help

21. The doctor asked if Hady had experienced any .....
   - a. injections b. symptoms c. medication d. mental disorder

22. The sentence that summarizes the second paragraph is " ..... ".
   - a. Hady went to hospital to have an operation after the doctor determined his appendix was swollen
   - b. Fareed called a doctor because his brother suffered a severe stomach pain and required surgery
   - c. A doctor arrived, assessed Hady's symptoms and decided he needed urgent hospital surgery
   - d. Fareed was worried when he found out his brother suffered vomiting and fever and needed to go to hospital

23. Fareed's feelings changed through this experience from .....
   - a. worried and lonely to relieved and comforted
   - b. sad and abandoned to happy and lonesome
   - c. terrified and lonesome to proud and social
   - d. depressed and lonely to inspired and motivated

24. Unless doctors had worked fast, ...
   - a. Hady's condition could have become life-threatening
   - b. the ambulance would have taken Hady back home
   - c. Hady would have enjoyed a longer wait
   - d. Hady's appendix could have healed on its own

25. The clearer the symptoms are, the .....
   - a. harder the pain the patient feels b. easier the doctors detect the disease
   - c. longer the time the patient suffers
   - d. less effective the medicine the doctor prescribes

26. Fareed was alone, so he .....

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

A walk to freedom written by Nelson Mandela

I was no more than five when I became a herd-boy, looking after sheep in the fields. It was in the fields that I learned to knock birds out of the sky with a slingshot, to gather wild honey, fruits, edible roots, and many other things. I learned stick-fighting — essential knowledge for any African boy — and became adept at its various techniques, parrying blows, feinting in one direction and striking in another, breaking away from an opponent with quick footwork. These days are the ones that built my love of the veld, the simple beauty of nature, and the clean line of the horizon.

As boys, we were mostly left to our own devices. We made our own toys, nature was our playground, and the hills became our roller coasters. We sat on flat stones and slid down the rock faces, shouting with joy.

One day I learned a lesson from an unruly donkey. We had been taking turns riding it and when finally, my turn came, I jumped on. The donkey bolted into a thorn bush, bent its head and unseated me but not before the thorns pricked my face, embarrassing me before my friends. We had a strong sense of dignity, that day I lost face, as the Chinese like to call it, but I learned that to humiliate another person is to make him suffer an unnecessarily hard fate. But even as a boy, I defeated my opponents without dishonoring them.

Read the following passage, then choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d:

Every year, approximately 500 billion plastic bags are consumed worldwide. Over 1 million bags are used every minute and they're damaging our environment. In other words, every man, woman and child on our planet uses 83 plastic bags every year. Plastic bags are difficult and costly to recycle. If they are not recycled, they can take around 300 years to decompose. They break down into tiny particles that contaminate soil and waterways. When animals accidentally ingest them, these plastics enter the food chain.

Big black bin liners, plastic carrier bags and clear sandwich bags all contribute to environmental pollution. They're lightweight, handy and easy to discard carelessly. Plastic bags can be seen hanging from the branches of trees, flying in the air on windy days and floating on rivers. They block up ditches and drains causing water and human waste to overflow which creates breeding grounds of bacteria that cause diseases. Plastic bags are now amongst the top 12 items of litter found along coastlines.

Animals and sea creatures are hurt and killed every day by plastic bags because they mistake them for food. Plastic is trapped in their stomachs and leads to slow starvation. Other creatures get caught up in plastic bags and drown. Many bags that drift into the ocean end up killing turtles, suffocating seabirds and filling the stomachs of dolphins and whales with waste until they die of starvation. A dead turtle with a plastic bag hanging from its mouth presents a stark image of this environmental crisis.

Every year our oceans become 'home' to more and more plastic bags which can persist for hundreds of years to break down. There are schemes to recycle and reduce the use of plastic bags all over the world. More than 40 countries have banned or partly banned single-use plastic bags, including China, France, Rwanda, and Italy. Plastic bags can be re-used in a variety of ways and can carry 2,500 times their own weight! Despite their convenience, plastic bags pose significant environmental challenge, and these problems are becoming increasingly widespread. Fortunately, more people are becoming aware of this issue and taking action to mitigate it.

20. What is the main idea of the text?
   - a. Plastic bags are littering seas and harming animals.

B Reading Comprehension

3) Read the following passage and answer the questions: [8 Marks]

Scientific research is a systematic way of studying the world to discover new knowledge. Scientists use research to understand natural phenomena and solve problems. The process usually begins with a question or a problem that needs investigation.

Next, the scientist forms a hypothesis, which is a possible explanation that can be tested. After that, experiments or observations are carried out to collect data. The data are then analyzed carefully to see whether the hypothesis is correct or not.

Another important step in scientific research is reviewing the results. Scientists discuss their findings with other experts who carefully check the research. This process is called peer review. It helps make sure that the research is accurate and reliable before it is published. Peer review also helps scientists improve their work and correct any mistakes.

Finally, scientists share their results with others through reports, articles, or presentations. Scientific research is important because it helps improve technology, medicine, and our understanding of the universe.

Write one paragraph of 120 words (ten lines) on one of the following topics:

1. "The impact of social media on youth"
2. How can we save and protect the environment?

Social media has a great impact on young people's lives today. On the one hand, it helps them communicate easily with friends and learn new things quickly. Students can use it to search for information and improve their knowledge. On the other hand, excessive use of social media can waste time and reduce concentration. It may also affect mental health by causing stress or comparison with others. Therefore, young people should use social media wisely and set limits for their daily use. Parents and teachers should guide them to benefit from it positively. In conclusion, social media is a useful tool if it is used in a balanced and responsible way.

B Reading Comprehension

4) Read the following passage and answer the questions: [10 Marks]

History is the study of past events, people, and civilizations. It helps us understand how societies developed and how the modern world was formed. By studying history, people can learn about the successes and failures of earlier generations. These lessons can guide us in making better decisions for the future.

Many historians spend years researching historical documents, letters, and ancient artifacts. They try to understand how people lived, what they believed in, and how they solved their problems. For example, historians study ancient civilizations such as those in Egypt, Greece, and Rome to learn about their governments, cultures, and scientific achievements.

History also helps us understand the causes of major events such as wars, revolutions, and social changes. When people know the reasons behind these events, they may be able to prevent similar problems in the future. In addition, studying history encourages critical thinking because students must analyze different sources and opinions before forming conclusions.

Moreover, history is closely connected to literature. Many famous writers were inspired by historical events and real-life characters. Historical novels, biographies, and poems often reflect the culture and values of their time. Through literature, readers can experience the emotions, struggles, and hopes of people who lived in the past.

In conclusion, history is not only about memorizing dates and events. It is a way of understanding human experiences and learning important lessons about society, culture, and human behavior.

A- Answer the following questions.

1. What is history?
History is the study of past events, people, and civilizations.
2. Why is studying history important for people today?
Because it helps people learn from the past and make better decisions.
3. Who studies historical documents and artifacts?

- Ways to keep healthy.

Health is more important than wealth because without good health, money becomes useless. A rich person who suffers from serious illness cannot enjoy life or achieve happiness. Therefore, people should take care of their health from an early age. Prevention is better than cure, so we must follow healthy habits every day. For example, eating balanced food, doing regular exercise, and getting enough sleep are essential for a healthy body. In addition, avoiding smoking and reducing stress can protect us from many diseases. Visiting doctors regularly also helps in early detection of illnesses. Moreover, maintaining good mental health is as important as physical health. In conclusion, health is the real wealth that enables us to live a happy and productive life. .....

3) Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Social media have transformed the way people communicate and interact with each other. Platforms like Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter allow users to share and update photos, and videos instantly with a global audience. These platforms have made it easier to stay connected with friends and family, regardless of location.

However, social media also have its drawbacks. Some argue that extreme use of social media can lead to feelings of loneliness and depression. Additionally, it has raised concerns about privacy and the spread of misinformation. Despite these challenges, social media continue to grow with millions of new users joining every day. As a result, it has become a significant part of modern life and is shaping the way society communicates and consumes information.
